In this article the last of the series, the author after giving ample details of the organisation set up by JONES to maintain liason with the partisans in occupied Italy and the supply of their units through Switzerland concludes throwing on the Allies full responsibilities for the disaster met by the OSSOLA Republic, when over a thousand partisans lost their lives or were captured in an hopeless fight against the Nazi-Fascists, i.e. :

"" They were feverish days . Confusion and organa was reigning at the United States Consulate. The young OSSOLA Republic, born from the will and the blood of a group of audacious partisans was in danger....""....
.... Up to the very end the partisans waited, from the skies, for those helps , promised by the Allied Intelligence Services well informed of their tragic plight. Less than 3000 partisans badly armed, with scarce ammunitions, against 15,000 fascists. A bombers formation would have proved sufficient to disperse the attackers. But, evidently the Allies had other plans.

It was seen when, a few months later, they accepted to negotiate with General WOLFF, the surrender of the German Armies in Italy.
Of this historical fact, on which the whole truth has now yet been told, we shall relate in another series of articles. "" "" "" ""
